

REUP+ Service Partner Invitation

Connecting Professional Expertise with Real Needs in the AI Era

Dear Real Estate Service Providers and Partners,

Greetings!

REUP+ cordially invites you to join our platform and help build a professional service network for real estate renovation, remodeling, design, construction, furnishing and related supplies, and operations.

Based in the United States and serving a global market, we use AI to support needs analysis and match demand with service providers, while helping projects move forward through tenders, competitive bidding, and partnership introductions. As AI changes how clients express their needs, find services, and make decisions, we hope to work with businesses that bring professional expertise, reliable delivery capabilities, and a collaborative spirit to pursue new industry opportunities.

1 How Clients Find Services Is Changing

In the past, clients typically had to search for businesses, browse advertisements, request multiple quotes, and decide for themselves who was best suited to their project. Businesses, in turn, had to invest continuously in marketing and identify worthwhile opportunities among a large volume of inquiries.

As AI capabilities develop, clients can begin with a simple statement in everyday language:

“I want to renovate an older home to increase its resale value.”

“I am planning to remodel a restaurant and need design, construction, and furniture.”

“My vacation rental needs an upgrade, and I want to balance the budget, timeline, and operational results.”

Behind these statements are often several interconnected professional needs.

We believe that connections between clients and real estate service providers will gradually evolve from searching and browsing toward understanding needs, organizing solutions, matching capabilities, and supporting ongoing collaboration.

This means that businesses will increasingly need to demonstrate their competitiveness through clear professional profiles, credible project examples, well-defined service scopes, and consistent delivery capabilities.

2 REUP+ Is Being Built for This Transition

REUP+ integrates AI into its business processes and is gradually developing the following capabilities around a workflow of understanding needs, defining project requirements, matching businesses, organizing bids, and supporting delivery:

Making needs clearer.

AI helps clarify clients' goals, budgets, locations, timelines, and service scopes. Combined with human review, it turns scattered ideas into project requirements that businesses can evaluate, price, and execute.

Making professional capabilities easier to identify.

We build business profiles covering service areas, specialties, project experience, credentials, and project capacity. These profiles provide a stronger basis for matching and help qualified businesses become candidates for suitable projects.

Making communication and bidding more efficient.

Support for summarizing requirements, organizing documents, flagging questions, and comparing quotes reduces repetitive communication and helps both parties clarify service scope, delivery standards, and terms of cooperation earlier.

Supporting collaboration throughout the project lifecycle.

We coordinate collaboration across design, construction, materials, furnishings, staffing, and subsequent operations, creating opportunities for businesses to participate at different project stages and establish long-term partnerships.

3 Moving Toward Informed Proactive Connections

REUP+ aims to further explore proactive services. With the client's authorization, we can use property conditions, project progress, and confirmed goals to identify services that may be needed at the next stage and invite suitable businesses to participate.

For example, once a client confirms a renovation plan, materials and furnishings can be coordinated in advance. As the project enters preconstruction, the appropriate specialist teams can be introduced. After a vacation rental renovation is completed, property management and maintenance needs can be addressed.

The value of proactive connections lies in offering timely, well-founded recommendations, while leaving the decision to proceed with the client.

For businesses, this creates opportunities to participate earlier in project planning and to extend a single service engagement into a long-term partnership.

4 The Partners We Invite

We welcome professional organizations and businesses across the real estate service chain, including:

- Architectural, interior, and landscape design firms, and engineering consultants;

- General contractors, renovation companies, and specialist teams for plumbing, electrical work, HVAC, roofing, and other trades;

- Suppliers of building materials, hardware, doors and windows, and kitchen and bathroom equipment;

- Providers of furniture, lighting, carpets, decorative artwork, signage, and interior furnishing packages;

- Providers of project management, property inspections, appraisals, cleaning, repairs, and maintenance;

- Property management companies, vacation rental management providers, and related operators;

Professional firms providing real estate brokerage, legal, insurance, and financing support in accordance with applicable licensing requirements and business rules.

Whether you specialize in a single service or can undertake an entire project, we look forward to learning about your strengths.

5 Join Us to Build a Professional Service Network for the AI Era

We invite you to submit your company introduction, service areas, professional credentials, representative projects, and the types of projects you can undertake. Together with the REUPPlus team, you can build a clear, accurate business profile suitable for matching.

Following document review and discussions about cooperation, both parties can pursue project introductions, invitations to bid, or partnership discussions based on specific projects and the platform features available. Onboarding requirements, fees, and project responsibilities will be governed by formally published rules and agreements between the parties.

REUP+ is building a platform that makes client needs clearer, business capabilities easier to understand, and industry collaboration smoother.

AI helps us understand needs. Professional partners turn projects into reality.

We warmly invite you to join REUP+ and explore new ways to connect real estate services, turning your professional strengths into more valuable partnership opportunities.

We look forward to working with you!
